FAQ's

Do you deliver outside of the UK?

Yes. If you would like your delivery to be outside of the UK, please let us know at quoting stages so that we can get prices from our trusty courier. Please be aware that delivering outside of the UK will increase lead times.

What payment methods do you accept?

We accept payment by credit or debit card, BACs transfer or cheque. We offer credit accounts to repeat well established customers. Get in touch with your sales rep for more information about this.

I don't know what packaging I need; can Elliott Packaging help me decide?

We specialise in helping customers choose the correct packaging for their product. Our sales team have extensive knowledge on all products, printing and materials. Your account manager will be happy to advise and send samples.

Can I get samples of your products?

Yes of course, speak to your sales manager. Samples of similar bags will help you get an idea of how your bag will look, our printing quality and the material of your packaging.

What are printing plates and why do I need them?

We use printing plates to print on your bags. We outsource our printing plates from trusted printing plate makers. You will need to purchase your printing plates with your first order. If your artwork is the same on future orders, you will not need to purchase these again.

Can I get a printed sample of my bag before I place my order?

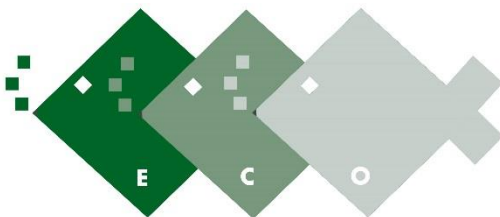

Unfortunately, not. The manufacturing process of a printed bag does not allow us to set up the machines to print just one bag. We do have other options though for peace of mind. We can send samples of our recent work. We can offer visual mock ups online. As standard procedure, our plate makers send PDF printing proofs which show, colours sizes and positioning. These proofs need to be signed off before we proceed to make yours bags. We can also offer a 'cromalin' a cromalin is a print off of your PDF proof on film which will give you a very good vision of the finished product.

What are pantone colours?

Pantone is a standardized colour matching system which uses a numbering system to identify colour shades. When you create your artwork, you will need to choose your pantone colours. Pantone colours can be found on the pantone website. <http://www.pantone.com/>

What is a process print?

A process print is a print technique which uses 4 standard colours (CMYK) to create a full spectrum of colours. CMYK stands for cyan magenta yellow and black.

Plastic bags on our price list including the mailing bags and carrier bags are photodegradable and fully recyclable. Our paper bags are fully recyclable and FCS certified. We have other eco-friendly options available, get in touch for more information.
